C.-C. Mass Meeting To Wind Up Drive For Garment Plant

$35,000 Raised, $14,500 Yet to Go in Popular Stock Purchase Campaign For New Factory

Within $24,500 of the goal which will assure Port Arthur a garment factory capitalized at $100,000 to begin operation within 90 days and to employ 125 to 200 regularly, a meeting of the business men has been called by Chairman Ed Lohmann of the drive committee raising the stock for 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping.

The first day's drive netted $35,000 signed on the dotted line. This, Lohmann and Manager A. L. Burge of the chamber, believe, is excellent.

Check-Up Today

Fact that the garment factory is a proposition which people are putting their savings in means the question is given a thorough inspection by all who buy stock. Without exception those who investigated the factory from a financial and business viewpoint have found it what they hoped and have bought stock, Lohmann says.

The meeting this afternoon will be for the purpose of checking up. That there are hundreds of people with idle money in moderate and small amounts who would be glad to buy stock in a proposition with a future to it like the garment factory if they are acquainted with the position is the belief of business men behind the project. This question of presentation of the stock sale to this class of people will be decided today, Lohmann says.

West Awaiting Word

With less than $15,000 not subscribed the committee desires to distribute this among as many stockholders as possible. No large blocks of stock have been purchased on this basis because the idea is to get as many Port Arthur unit-individuals in on it as will buy.

Before the end of the week it is believed the proposition will be clinched and a wire sent to O. D. West, Little Rock manufacturer, telling him Port Arthur has met his proposition. West is subscribing 51 per cent of the capital stock and is to be president and general manager of the company and will move to Port Arthur.

SPECIALTY ACTS ADDED TO REVUE

Song, Dance and Black Face Skits Secured

Two new specialty artists and a jazz orchestra have been added to the American Legion annual show, the "Dixie Revue of 1924," which opens for a three-day run next week at the Elks theatre, Commander J. L. Dunn announced today.

Miss Wee Wee Griffing, song and dance artist, who has participated in a number of home talent offerings here and elsewhere has been secured for a specialty act.

"B. T. U." Harding, black face artist and comedian de luxe, has been signed up for another special entertainment and monologue skit in connection with the minstrel.

A jazz orchestra will be on the stage a good portion of the time, conducted by Prof. O. L. Lantz.

BIDS ASKED FOR SHELL FOR STREETS

The city commission this morning asked for bids on hauling approximately 14,500 cubic yards of shell and gravel from the Southern Pacific tracks to Vicksburg avenue between Procter and Sixteenth streets and to Fifth and Sixteenth streets between Savannah and Stillwell avenues. The bids will be opened next Wednesday morning.

FULL PIER LEASE TO DUNSTAN DISCUSSED

Leasing of all concessions, to be made by C. E. Dunstan this morning together with City Engineer J. O. Herpin, but action was deferred until all board members are present. J. L. Bangard and J. R. Denney attended the morning's meeting, but Chairman R. L. Drake is out of town.

Dunstan has leased the pavilion until June 1, 1926, and is desirous of leasing all concessions as well. The two board members this morning were, but deferred action until Drake's return.

Public Barred, 15 Judges View Scantly Clad Bath Beauty Bevy

In fact, if the contest for Queen Had Been Held In Public, Everyone of 73 Misses Would Be Jailed

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—Behind closed doors and with the window blinds carefully drawn, 15 judges inspected the chorus chorus of 73 girls from various parts of the United States today, preparatory to selecting the most perfectly formed and fairest of faces "Miss America, 1924."

The beauties wore scant bathing suits, of the type known as the "two in one." It has a short skirt—very short, and the censors do not permit girls thus attired to reach the beach. A city ordinance imposes a fine for favorable, but didn't bother about sealing them, but just dumped them in the postoffice slot.

So the contest was staged in the club room with only the 15 judges and the 73 girls present.

'STATUS QUO' IS CLAIMED IN NOTE

Salary Will Be Held Until Decision, It Says

CASE UP IN OCTOBER

Communication Sites Under-standing of Council

City paychecks were passed out today—all except the city clerk's.

The city commissioners yesterday signed the paychecks, but the check made out for City Clerk E. H. Miles was returned unsigned, with an explanatory note attached.

The note said it was the understanding of the commission that under the latest injunction secured by Miles "things must stand status quo until a decision is handed down by the court."

Court Convenes Oct. 6

Miles said he found the unsigned check and the attached note stuck under the roll-top of his desk when he returned from lunch yesterday afternoon.

Whether or not the latest angle in the Miles tangle would constitute contempt of court in the face of the order handed last week by Justice L. B. Hightower of the Ninth Circuit of Civil Appeals of Beaumont was a topic being freely discussed at the city hall today. Justice Hightower's order restrains both the city commissioner and J. C. Hamilton, assistant city clerk, from interfering with Miles in pursuit of his duties as city clerk until the court can examine the case. The appeals court will not convene until October 6.

R. L. Murray, attorney for Miles, was in Beaumont this morning and had not returned at one o'clock.

The communication, which Mayor Logan said this morning was the sentiment of the commission, although there were no signatures, to the type-written missive, was as follows:

"The commission will not sign this check, as our understanding of the injunction is that things must stand status quo until a decision is handed down by the court; if at that time it is held by the court that the commission did not discharge Miles legally, he will then be entitled to his salary after the date of August 21st, the date of his removal from office, which is a part of the city records; and on the other hand if it is held by the court that the commission were within their rights and discharged him legally, naturally he will not receive any pay after the date of his discharge."

ADAMS EXTENDS DATE FOR BIDS

Vigorously Denies Plans To Build Abandoned

Denial of rumors that plans have been abandoned for the construction of the new John R. Adams building at Fifth street and Austin avenue was made today by Will Adams, official in the John R. Adams company.

Bids for the proposed six story structure to cost $700,000 will be received September 15, the time for submitting the bids having been extended from August 29 at the request of the contractors who said they could not prepare their bids by that time, Adams said.

"A number of contractors in Dallas, Galveston, New Orleans and Houston have asked for plans and specifications on the new building, and there is no hitch in the preparation for going ahead with the construction as planned," Adams declared, pointing out that the bids will not be received before the middle of this month because the contractors asked for a time extension.

It is expected that some time will be required to tabulate the bids and get them in shape to award the contract after September 15. John R. Adams is now in Little Rock, Ark., but is expected to return to Port Arthur Tuesday or Wednesday.

LEAGUE TO HEAR RATES PROTEST

Taylor to Head Gulf Ports Committee at Austin

Call meeting of the Texas Industrial Traffic League has been ordered at Austin next week to consider protest relative to the hearing before the United States Shipping board at Washington next October, when all Gulf Coast cities will ask water rates be lowered commensurate with those of north and south Atlantic rates.

This was the announcement today of H. Y. Taylor, traffic head of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping who was Wednesday appointed at New Orleans chairman of the committee which will fight for the southern cities before the shipping board. Taylor states interior cities served by the Gulf ports are as vitally interested in securing equitable rate reduction as those directly on or connected with the ocean. That is why the state traffic league members will be asked to help out in the fight and send a representative to Washington with Taylor and his committee.

The differential rates now are 15 and 7 1/2 cents higher on Gulf coast points than North and South Atlantic ports respectively. To reduce Gulf rates is the object of the fight, Taylor says.

NEGRO LOSES DIGITS IN SAUSAGE GRINDER

Three fingers broken and one so crushed that amputation was necessary resulted to J. Wilson, negro, when his left hand caught in an electric sausage grinder in a store at 900 Texas avenue early today, according to reports at Mary Gates hospital, where Wilson was rushed in a Grammar ambulance.

The negro's burns, while painful and severe, are not believed to be serious, attendants said.

Paschal Invents a Way To Save Lots of Time

"Red" Paschal claims he's the busiest man in town this week.

One of Paschal's numerous duties is to mail out weekly notices to all lions regarding the Friday luncheon. Paschal being secretary of the club.

This week Paschal says he was so busy he didn't take time to mimeograph a letter, but simply addressed envelopes and wrote across the front with a red pencil in his best manly voice: "Plaza, 12:15, Friday."

He didn't put anything in the envelopes, didn't bother about sealing them, but just dumped them in the postoffice slot.

BONES OF THREE BROKEN IN CRASH

Two Port Arthur Girls And Boy Injured

Further examination of the two young women and man injured when two automobiles crashed and went in the ditch on the paved highway near Greenlawn cemetery late Thursday night, made at Mary Gates hospital today, showed all the victims suffered bone fractures and severe and painful cuts and bruises, but are not believed seriously injured, attending physicians said.

Girls' Collar Bones Broken

Fractures of their left collar bones were suffered by Miss Dorothy Beal, of 2334 Fifth street, and Miss Fay Smith of 500 Stillwell boulevard, telephone operators, and John Hickman, of 730 Seventh street, who received a fracture of his nose and his left arm was dislocated at the elbow, an x-ray examination made today disclosed. All the injured were cut and bruised. Hickman also receiving a deep gash in the back of his head, and cuts and bruises about the face.

All of the injured were riding in the same automobile, with Miss Alice Moore, of 1911 Tenth street, driving, and Hickman sitting on the front seat with her.

Tried to Pass Car Ahead

Miss Moore said she cut too sharply in front of another car which she passed going in the same direction, both cars going into the ditch following the collision. A young man and a girl riding in the other car escaped unhurt. Witnesses said the automobiles were running at a slow rate of speed.

First aid treatment for Miss Smith, Miss Beal and Hickman was given by a Port Arthur physician who happened to be near the scene of the wreck, and ambulances summoned from the Grammar establishment brought them to Mary Gates hospital.

University Law Dean Chosen Governor Nominee

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 5.—Dr. George C. Butte, dean of the law school of the University of Texas, was unanimously selected as the republican nominee for governor of Texas by the state republican executive committee after a four-hour session here today.

THOUSANDS AWAIT ACES

Boston Prepares Celebration To Welcome Airmen

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—The American fliers passed over Bar Harbor, Maine, at 3:15 p. m., according to a radio to the navy yard here. Bar Harbor is 100 miles northeast of Boston.

By United Press.

PICOTU, N. S., Sept. 5.—America's around the world aviators were winging their way toward the homeland this afternoon. Barring weather and accidents they should arrive in Boer at 4 o'clock central time.

The flight from Picot Harbor to Boston got under way officially at 11:44 a. m. when the big Douglas six-engine biplane, piloted by Lieutenant Lowell Smith, and the New Orleans, with Lieutenant Eric Nelson at the stick, drove out to open sea and headed for home.

Wade Has Difficulty

The Boston II, piloted by Lieutenant Leigh Wade, had considerable difficulty getting off the water because of the calm, and finally tumbled out to the entrance to the harbor, taking the air as he reached the open sea opposite Picot Harbor.

The destroyer Barry, which had been standing by, immediately picked up the plane's anchor buoys and raced out to sea after them.

The weather was very hazy and land watchers lost sight of the planes as they passed out of the harbor.

N. B. in a radio from the destroyer Lawrence.

Fog Reported

It was believed possible the airmen might stop there if weather conditions were too bad.

Haze and fog were reported from several districts along the route to Boston.

Despite the thick weather navy officers believed the airmen would make the trip without stopping and estimated the 520-mile flight would be made in about six and one-half hours which will put the aviators in Boston shortly after 6 p. m., eastern daylight savings time.

Guns to Roar Out Presidential Salute From Boston Battery

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Boston declared a virtual holiday today to welcome America's around the world fliers to the homeland.

Thousands of victors began pouring into the city in the early morning and there was a general exodus toward the east Boston Air Port, where the heroes are expected about mid-afternoon.

Patrick to Meet Fliers

As word is flashed in by radio from the ship stations that the planes are drawing near, an air squadron headed by General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, will see them to meet them, picking up the globe girdling planes about three hours out of the city.

One of the planes, a Curtis pursuit speedster piloted by Lieutenant R. Curtis Moffatt, will hurtle back to Boston at high speed as soon as the world airmen are sighted, to notify the public that their arrival is at hand.

First U. S. Landing

In addition to Major General Patrick the welcome fleet will include Assistant Secretary of War Davis, a radio plane to keep officials informed of the progress of the flight, and a number of commercial machines with motion picture photographers.

The world fliers will make their first landing in American waters in the Boston ship channel just off the airport, and then will taxi down to the mooring buoys.

As the planes settle on the water, anti-aircraft guns of battery A, ninth regiment, coast artillery, will roar out the presidential salute of 21 guns and the official ceremonies will follow.

$18,632 ONE DAY'S PERMITS

One of the heaviest afternoon's business in the office of Charles Busby, city building inspector was Thursday when permits for residences, business houses, a garage, and for repairs were issued for a total of $18,632.

The largest permit was for $6,000, issued to W. D. Hayes to erect a business building at 1448 Houston.

Several large permits were issued for the Lambert addition and included a residence by W. D. Smith to cost $3,000, another by Miss Shelton Aycock for $4,000, and a garage by Travis Lambert to cost $1250. All of these are to be built on Ninth avenue in the Lambert addition.

Adrie B. Floyd secured permit for a residence at 516 West Sixth to cost $3,200.

TO BUILD THIRD FAIR BUILDING

More Concession and Exhibit Space Needed

A third building will be necessary at the Pleasure Pier to take care of the fair exhibits which are pouring in daily and arrangements are being made by the executive committee to see such a structure is built at once.

This was the statement of Manager A. L. Burge today following a conference with President Gene Gifford.

The main Pleasure Pier building, the enlargement of the picture show building and the ordering of tents for special exhibits which could be housed out of doors have not proved enough to satisfy demands for concession and exhibit spaces.

The question now is, according to Gifford and Burge, whether the proposed building of the material men which was to contain 14 exhibition booths and to be erected on a temporary basis only be backed by the fair association or another larger one sponsored. The material men, though drawing up plans, several signing up for floor space, have never definitely decided to enter into the project. George Carter who has been behind the movement states.

That enough merchants signed up for space in the other buildings would gladly take over space in the new building and leave room for other exhibits in the original spaces is the belief of the officials. The matter will be discussed and definitely disposed of at a meeting of the executive committee soon, it was said today.

The Girl Who Bared Her Soul

When Elizabeth promised to be Robert's wife, she did not know to what lengths of treacherous fury a woman will go who is eaten with envy and jealousy. In her inexperience of life, she was to learn that while the mills of the gods grind slowly, they grind exceeding fine—and that her courage and honor would have to meet tests that few women can meet and emerge strong and unscathed.

"In Forever After," Elizabeth bares her soul with fearless frankness. It is a gripping story—yet it is only one of the many remarkable features in October True Story, now on sale at all newsstands.

LETTER FROM KARL WHITNEY TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

DEAR LESLIE:
I have been wanting Alice to write you ever since our marriage. She has promised to do this from day to day, but she has become very much interested in some lessons in dramatics and dancing, and hardly gets time to eat properly, let alone to attend to any of her other duties. I have come to the conclusion if any explanation is ever made to you, I shall have to make it.

Now I want to apologize for her act in writing that letter to your husband. I do not think, Leslie, that Alice really realized what she was doing. Surely, she would not do it because of those trumpery pearl beads. I have come to the conclusion, however, that in her great love of dramatizing her self she wrote this letter to your husband for the advantage of it.

On the day after her hysterical outburst, before your mother and greatly, and it is breaking her heart. I wish you would write her, Leslie, and tell her that you forgive her. I know that you are even big enough to do that.

I think she should be back where her mother can talk to her. I never realized before what a strange disposition my wife Alice has. She now has the peculiar idea that she wants to go on the stage—says she must have something to do when I get tired of her. With her temperament, I cannot allow her to do that. I shall rely upon your father and mother to talk her out of it.

I hope by this time that you have explained the whole thing to your husband, and are happy and contented again. I expect you will never want the pearls again, but I would like to have you keep them, and give them to your little daughter, if you should have one; if not to your son's wife.

If you wish me to write to Mr. Prescott I will do so with pleasure. Let me hear from you soon.

Sincerely, KARL.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The country side around Constantinople was shaken for miles, many workmen were killed and others died in hospitals and the town of Makryne was practically wiped out, when powder factories about 20 miles from the former-Turkish capital blew, according to a Central News dispatch today.

Communists were blamed first, but later the disaster was attributed to carelessness on the part of employees.

The Editorial Mind

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

THE DOG
Sometime ago I published an article which was almost entirely another's opinion and in direct quotation, but which has aroused antagonism against myself.
The article was published because the opinions were so unusual and bizarre but I must have reckoned without the indignation of the public for they seem to have leaped to the conclusion that the opinions were my own and not those of another.
As a matter of fact it was on the subject of "Dogs" and those who deal with that subject are up against a solid wall of sentiment which they will be unable to move.
I am not so far removed from my fellowmen that I am indifferent to what concerns them and I know that that which lies nearest their hearts is not made of logic but of sentiment. All the reason in the world fails when it comes to a mother and her child, a lad and his lass and a man and his dog.
Dogs interest us mostly because they are a natural and simple expression of love and loyalty. Master-look says that the dog is the only animal in the world that loves a man. All the arguments which we bring forward fall to the ground before one honest look of his eyes.
And then a dog is the only animal that wags his tail as an expression of pleasure. Others may wag it for other reasons, but the dog does so only because he is happy.
Furthermore a dog likes you for yourself alone. It makes no difference whether you are the president of the United States or a hobo, his affection is just as genuine and unstained.
A love of this kind is not to be despised. To think that the most amazing fidelity and affection in the world is ours for a little kindness, for a little of the common currency of attention, is amazing. And no money nor fame nor position would draw to itself that attachment which is shown by a dog to the meanness of men.
Speaking of the meanness of men it has been said that no man is so low but that he can find a woman to love him and it is certainly true that no man is so low that he cannot find a dog to follow him.
I do not blame my correspondents for bridling up, although they might have exercised a little more discrimination. Any attack upon the dog, which is the best friend of man, notwithstanding that his companionship is associated with certain dangers, will be resented. What are dangers compared with the privilege of such unwavering affection?

CAPITALIZING SEX IN POLITICS MEANS FAILURE OF LEGISLATION

The women's party has decided that there should be more women in congress. No particular persons are advanced in support of such a proposition except that England and Germany have more women legislators than we, and that we need "the women's point of view" in our lawmaking.
Right there is where the women's party indicates its complete lack of knowledge of what is meant by public service and intended by the enfranchisement clause.
No woman should be elected to any legislative, judicial or executive place merely because she is a woman. No man is elected because he is a man. It isn't a matter of sex, but it is a matter of reputed or real capacity to serve the public regardless of skirt or pants. Nor is "the woman's point of view" important—it isn't of the slightest consequence, because it cannot exist. Legislation involves right against wrong, the need of good against evil, of benefit to the whole country as against reverse. There can be no distinctive or exclusive point of view among women as women in such case any more than among men, and there never will be. Always, in matters of official life—in politics—women must work and think and vote just as men do, and be divided by their varying mental attitudes just as men are. It is impossible for them, as it is for men, to be always in agreement on all subjects and they cannot make the public service a matter of one gender alone. The sex alignment or attitude gets its advocates and sponsors nowhere at all.
Neither is it true that legislative bodies are materially or even slightly improved by the mere presence of women therein, for all women are not necessarily good and competent. Something far more potent than that is needed, as for instance, intelligence, character and the capacity for great and wise service. Only by and through such attributes is officialdom made better. Trick of nature or mode of dress have nothing to do with it.
There is a big place in politics and the civil service for women but they will never attain it so long as they insist on capitalizing their sex.

DEATH OF LAUGH PREDICTED

A dreary future, in which no one will ever laugh, is predicted by Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, who teaches philosophy at New York University. Many signboards point that way.
People certainly do not laugh as much as they used to. Comedians in recent years have been complaining that audiences are becoming more solemn, with the "dare you to make me smile" attitude.
This is due partly to the war, which took most of the joy out of life and shocked people into serious attitude. But, even more, it's a result of publicity. In former generations, jokes traveled slowly, were carried about by theatrical troupers and drummers. Today the new joke on Broadway is carried by newspapers, vaudeville and radio all over the country, and quickly.
Naturally, with such fast circulation, the life of a joke is shorter.
Then, too, humor has become a scientific business. Hundreds of clever comic artists and column conductors are on the alert for new "gags." The old ones have been classified, rehearsed, disguised, served time and again. Every one knows them—except the rising generation.
But scientific distribution of available humor is not what Shaw has in mind when he predicts a future without laughs. Primitive man, he says, didn't know enough to laugh, since wit involves a certain amount of intelligence.
"The men of the future will know too much to laugh at anything. We laugh at what we do not understand, or at what seems inferior to us. In both cases, our pride induces us to assume an exalted position and naughty air. Men used to laugh at Columbus and Galileo. Now they try to joke about Einstein and Freud.
"On the social side we are prone to laugh at people who appear inferior or are forced to assume degrading positions. The prince laughs at the pauper. The city person sneers at the rustic. The native citizen smiles at the immigrant. But these are only the signs of incongruities and inequalities which the future will remove."
Laughter, as Shaw views it, is a characteristic of man in his present stage of mental development. When men become more intelligent, he expects, they'll laugh less. How often do you see a scientist or highbrow laugh?
However, if the future has nothing in its existence to grin about, it can always look back and laugh at us.

Quillen's Paragraphs

Don't cheer, boys. The new members in the pews may be candidates. It probably isn't difficult to love a toy dog if you haven't a pet flea. Talent has little chance. Ananias never got to mention his golf score. Brother Charlie's lower-gas idea doesn't seem quite so erratic as 16 to 1. France may have the air if she will begin over here by taking the hot kind. A village is a place where there's nothing in the hip pocket except a handkerchief. American consuls are about as good as any, except they are poor insurance risks. It is much easier to love all God's little creatures if you have good screens. The prohibitionists have certainly sowed a bumper crop of tares among America's wild oats. We have come a long way when Germany doesn't rattle anything except a promissory note. Woman is superior. No mere man can brag and make you think he is apologizing. LaFollette is a good old sport. You can't blame him for all of those who support him. It's funny if we can trust congress to make laws and can trust it to make a president. Another good thing for nerves is an axe, if the neighbors are too fond of their children. And so insane slip into this country. The office cynic says the act proves the condition. Add pitiful spectacles: When the prize stinger man has squeezed out too much tooth paste and is trying to put it back in the tube. And so big business is stopping the war at last. It is so much easier to stop a thing you start. Of course the criminal element should be in jail, but think what it would cost us to build the jail. Another good way to capture a mouse is to cut out a section of trousers when he runs up your leg. Generally a millionaire is one who can't understand why anybody should wish to travel incog. It's a funny world. When cool weather gives you more pep, there are no ants to pick out of the butter.

RHYME OF ROTUNDITY
I don't eat much for breakfast
Rising early kills my appetite
So for breakfast I take very little—
Just a bite—
A grapefruit cut in two and fixed
With mounds
Of sugar, in each cut partition
And crimson cherries poised upon the halves
By my petition
And then a dish or two of white out-meal
Drowned in cream.
My milkman has the best of everything
That's why I seem
To note the very small amount
I use of cream.
One dish of crispy flakes with sliced
bananas
Will never make me fatter and it nourishes.
And oncel—If you've ever tasted
Aunt's—
That's one reason why my health flourishes.
A tiny slice of ham, pink, cured, I think
Gives one's palate a delicious kick.
Oh, I forgot to mention beverages—
What one drinks
Is quite important my physician thinks.
One tiny sip of cream, two cups of coffee
And one large glass of foamy buttermilk
So I describe
Plus two tall glasses of mineral water
What I imbibe.
I don't eat much for breakfast,
Rising early kills my appetite,
So in the morning I take very little—
Just a bite.

Stealthily I crept up behind her.
She was reading a love letter—a letter from HIM! Entirely unconscious of my presence, her golden-bred bob gleaming in the sun's rays, she reverently turned to the next page. Still closer I crept, my hands working spasmodically. I, the betrayed husband, was about to avenge my honor!
She must have heard me, for she turned like a flash, the letter half tucked behind her. Her large, violet eyes registered surprise—and fear.
Before she could cry out, my fingers were at her throat, squeezing.
"Cut!" bawled the Director. "That will do for today."
The clicking of the two movie cameras stopped!

THE SUCCESSFUL REAL ESTATE SPECULATOR BETS ON THE CROWD

In buying real estate for speculative purposes the speculator who is successful follows the motto, "Mass, not class."
In real estate, mass always drives out class—and usually to the enhancing value of the property. It is not a pleasant thought but it is so you can see its workings in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Newport, and every other place.
There is a fundamental underlying economic reason for this. A city grows and becomes crowded. A few millionaires have beautiful homes in the path of the expansion of the masses. Soon, this property will be unusually increased taxes and it stands idle—unproductive—while all around it income producing structures rise. After a while such a piece of property becomes too great an economic burden for the rich man to bear or it loses its desirability because of the closeness to the masses.
The result is that the millionaire moves on and the property becomes part of the business property of the rest of the neighborhood.

Tom Sims Says

Well, two's company and three's a crowd, and that seems to be true especially in a presidential race.
When a cop catches a man these days he doesn't know whether to take him to jail or to the asylum.
New York musicians are threatening to strike, but there is a general fear over the country that they will not do so.
German trains are being equipped with receiving sets, while in America the cowcatchers remain receiving sets.
If these round-the-world fliers don't come on home soon they will be mistaken for Santa Claus when they do arrive.
They caught three bank robbers in New Jersey because they made the mistake of not becoming cashiers first.
Mars came within 82 million miles of the earth and escaped without injury.
About the only way to stand summer heat is to sit it out.
In Paris, a man blew his head off with a bomb but it wasn't worth much, anyway.

legging may claim he had it for trying on hip pockets.

The NERVOUS WRECK by E.J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, driving his Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.
Later, Charlie McSween, foreman of a ranch along the route, hides the Wreck's car, takes off a wheel, and forces Sally to act as ranch cook. Then they discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch was in the car which they held up. Sheriff Bob Wells, Sally's fiancé, is unwittingly searching the country-side for the "bandits" who held up Underwood. Chester, Underwood's son, finds the hidden car on the ranch. Sally and the Wreck force Chester to show them to the car and then they make an escape. Now Sally is puzzled whether to catch a train for Chicago or to go back to her father's ranch.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
But it might be easier to go to Chicago, even if she did not buy a trousers there. There were difficulties in the way of an early return to the Bar-M; it would entail explanations that she did not want to make, not so much on her own account as on that of the Wreck. She felt that if worst came to worst, she could justify her own cause fairly well. But she did not know whether she could clear Henry Williams. Every unlawful thing he had done was on her own account, she knew, and not for all the world would she let him take the consequences single-handed. If they went back to the Bar-M she did not see how she could invent a story that would cover the situation. Certainly, she did not propose to tell the truth. She believed in truth, and she did not like inventions—but there was Henry Williams to be considered. And the welfare of Henry Williams rose above ethical considerations.
"Let's take the road back the way we came," she said. "I don't mean all the way. But we'll try to hit a branch road which will take us to the railway line. I think you spoke about Mr. Underwood saying they drove around by way of Duncan, I've never been to Duncan, but I think it's on the railroad. Why not try it?"
"It's Duncan," said the Wreck.
The flivver turned left into the highway and hurried on through the night. It was raining beautifully and noisily and the Wreck listened to the beat of the motor with a sense of keen satisfaction. Never had it hit on all four cylinders with more boisterous regularity. The rest had done it good. It was both rhythmic and raucous, which was the way a good flivver ought to be.
"If I make the train," asked Sally, after a long break in the conversation, "what are you going to do?"
"Oh, I'll drift down to the Bar-M."
"But how will you explain being away so long?"
"I'll say I took my time. Camped."
"But I thought you were just out here to rest your eyes," she mused.
"And they're all right again, aren't they?"
He shook his head violently.
"Bad as ever," he said. "Fierce."
"Henry, that's nonsense. You eat like a horse and you sleep like an old cat. I don't believe there's a thing the matter with your nerves."
"What do you know about it?" he demanded. "Is the person that knows, I can feel 'em. If you had my nerves strung through your system you'd be jumping around like a grasshopper. You'd be just what I am—a wreck."
"But you're not a wreck. That's just one of your silly ideas."
"You're always arguing."
"Oh, you can be disagreeable if you wish," said Sally. "But when you talk about needing a rest, for your nerves, make me tired."
"Oh, well, I don't have to rest them at the Bar-M, if that's what you mean."
"I didn't mean that. You know I didn't. You can rest them at the Bar-M from now until doomsday, if you like."
"I'll go somewhere else," he said, stubbornly.
"Don't be silly." That was as near as he would go to telling her exactly what he thought. If he was bored to rest his nerves in Montana, she did not know of any better place than the Bar-M. In fact, she did not know of any place which would serve so well. Even if he became a sort of permanent boarder, she did not see that the family would be inconvenienced. There was plenty of room.
"Oh, I'll bother somebody else for a while," he assured her.
It sounded to Sally as though he regarded his nerves as so many toys, and that if she did not like his toys he would take them to some other place and play. So she laughed.
"We're always getting into some absurd controversy, Henry. And here we are, right in the middle of an escape. By rights, we ought to be serious. Are you sure that you hid all the salaries?"
It was a change of subject that lasted them until the conversation again died into monosyllables, and then wholly ceased for miles. The night was cool and Sally buttoned her coat. The Wreck never seemed to feel heat or cold; she could not remember that. Even made a comment on the weather, not even on the day he arrived at Dad Morgan's ranch. There was a dry constancy and equanimity about his bone and flesh that often amazed her. Only his nerves gave him the least concern.
"Hungry?" she asked.
"Sure."
She unwrapped a package of sandwiches and handed him one. He made three bites of it. He accepted another, the third, and they vanished in a short fashion.
"Like 'em?" she ventured.
"They're great." "Wonderful! At last you admit I'm a cook, Henry. I even baked the bread, you know."
He gave her a quizzical glance.
"You'll eat all this business about cooking anyhow?" he asked.
"Never mind. It's something like a joke, I think. Perhaps I'll tell you some day."
"All right. Can I have another one?"
She was smiling as she gave him the fourth sandwich and watched it disappear.
The flivver was snorting along famously, and Sally propped herself back in the seat and enjoyed herself. It was good to feel free again on the open road. She would even have been willing to try cutting across the range if there was need for it. The Wreck's mood was exhilarated. He laid it to a nervous exaltation from which he would presently react, in all probability; but while it lasted he proposed to make the most of it.
After a little they began discussing trains going east. Sally, still somewhat doubtful as to whether she was really destined for Chicago, presently reacted, in all probability; but while it lasted he proposed to make the most of it.
"When it gets to be daylight," she said, "I'm afraid we're likely to find the main road risky."
"You mean the sheriff?"
"Yes."
"How big is the posse?"
"Don't tell me you're dreaming of making a fight if we meet them," she exclaimed.
"I was only wondering how big it was."
"It doesn't make any difference. Even Bob Wells, alone, is big enough."
"Is he?"
She shook her head impatiently.
"You don't understand. I'm not saying you're not able to fight. What I mean is that we mustn't meet them at all. Of course, Bob wouldn't do anything to me. But we can't afford even to let him see us. And besides, we'll be dead for sleep by daylight."
"Oh."
"So it seems to me that the sensible thing to do is turn off the road before it gets light, if we can find a place, and hide until it gets dark again."
They discussed it for a while, and he agreed with her. He had no doubt of his ability to skip a night's sleep if necessary, but there was no need to ask the same hardship of Sally. So they decided to find, rather hide-out as soon as it seemed advisable to desert the road. Meantime, the flivver steadily left the Underwood ranch farther and farther behind.
Sally sat wondering what Charlie McSween was saying, what Chester was doing, what everybody was thinking. She was afraid that Charley was having a difficult time of it with the boss of the ranch, and there were reports about Charlie that she admired. Of course, he had no business kidding them in the beginning, and it was intolerable for him to talk about detaining them for a month. But in other respects she found Charlie McSween rather agreeable.
The Wreck was not thinking about Charlie at all. He was not thinking of anything in particular, for that matter. He was in a mood of unusual content, his conscience clear, his mind settled, his optimism unshakable. All he wanted was to keep on to Chicago, indefinitely. Even the presence of a woman passenger did not disturb him. The sex still bothered him, of course; but Sally was less a trouble than any of the others. There was no foolishness about her, and if it came to a pinch she could be relied upon to do things. In fact, she was just about as good as a man, he admitted to himself.
"We mustn't forget to look for a turn-out," she reminded him, after she glanced at her watch and studied the stars. The moon had already dipped below the horizon.
Each watched their own side of the road, the bobbing beam of the headlights spreading itself sufficiently wide to illuminate any turn-out they might reach. Sally discovered what appeared to be a regular wagon road on her own side, but after an examination they decided against it. There was a sign of recent use and she feared that it might belong to another ranch. They were not in a hurry to meet any more ranchers.
Considerably later, the Wreck stopped the car and called attention to what looked like a trail, branching off to the left. Sally got out and examined it. There were wheel ruts, but they were overgrown. Wherever it led, it presented every aspect of abandonment. Sally did not remember that at all; she had been asleep when that road had been before her.

SUICIDE IN SLEEP
BANGOR, Eng., Sept. 5.—M. Thornton Jones, a solicitor, cut his throat in his sleep and died 80 minutes later. "I dreamt that I had done it," he wrote before a moment of consciousness. "I woke to find it true." A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned.

WAVE CATCHES CROWD
SOUTHSEA, Eng., Sept. 5.—Hundreds of persons at Southsea Beach were thoroughly drenched when a huge wave produced by the passing of two big trans-Atlantic liners swept upon the shore. The Berengaria and the Majestic were passing each other off the Isle of Wight, and the wash set up by their combined motion rolled like a tidal wave on the lower end of the beach.

Black Obliterates Gay Colors in Both Frocks And Hats For Autumn

AND skirts are to be very, very tight and short. This is the latest word from fashion experts concerning the modes for autumn and winter. Conservative houses are said to be displaying frocks and suits not higher than twelve inches from the ground and others show the little dress for street and daytime wear as short as 14 inches.

And black is the smartest thing in both frocks and hats. Next to black in fashion's favor is green. It comes in several pretty shades—Cossack, a dark green; shutter, the yellowish green of faded window blinds; Le-bannon, a grayish green; and as-sinthe, a tender green much used for evening frocks.

Then come the usual fall array of browns in the loveliest persimmon shades and all the tints one sees in autumn foliage. There is Vivian brown, kaffir and penny brown, as well as a long list of other shades. The fuchsia shade of purple is another color approved by Paris and panny purple is being featured here by several smart shops. Some of the purples shown are almost as red in tint as American berries.

The feature of the autumn, the real sensation of the year, is the ensemble costume.

The ensemble suit differs from the old time three-piece suit in that the frock of the costume may be as elaborate or as simple as one desires. The top or maybe a panel or both may be of soft metal cloth in the most ravishing colors but the new, the part which shows beneath the coat, must be of the same fabric as the coat. Many times the frock is made in tunic style with a banding of fur but the underskirt is of some imported wool material like the coat. The same fur appears on the coat, trimming cuffs, collar and perhaps revers.

While there are some wonderful new productions in wool, the most popular fabric is bengaline. This silk has a cord and is heavier than faille. Although all corded silks are good, entire costumes, coat and frock, are made of bengaline. Often the blouse of the frock is of metal cloth or brocaded chenille. These broadwells come in the most vivid as well as softly blended colorings. Flame and gray, royal blue and brown, purple and black, silver and Cossack, and gray and black are among the attractive combinations featured.

While the straight little frock, with or without tunic predominates, there is every once and a while an intimation of circular flounce shown. Sometimes this appears in an apron of handsome lace, sometimes a plaited flounce on the tunic, and again it may be colorful embroidery in circular ruff.

There is no happy medium for sleeves. They are either sleeveless or long. Right now in New York, black satin frocks, without a vestige of a sleeve, are almost a uniform on the streets.

Street frocks for fall and winter nearly all have long sleeves, with generally a fuzzy decorative cuff of some kind. Much fur is used—fur in all the shades approved for fall coats and dresses.

Not only do street coats match the frocks they are worn over, but even the evening coat, be it of fur or fabric, must match the evening gown. If of fur, the lining is like the dress, in color and fabric. If of cloth, the party tints, the decorative motif, and even the trimming, are of the same general treatment.

The high waistline predicted by many admirers of director's styles, has not materialized. Sometimes the trimming of a straightline dress may suggest the higher waistline, but the raising of this important zone is done more by suggestion than fact. When a decoration is used that suggests it the dress is not drawn in to the figure at the normal waistline in the slightest degree.

West Side Forfeits Texaco Game to Islanders

SCHEDULE ENDS IN FEW WEEKS

Central Area Seems Sure To Win Flag

TERMINAL gained a little in the Texaco league race yesterday afternoon without the expense of any energy when the West Siders, dragging along in the cellar, forfeited by failing to put a full team against the second-place Islanders. The players gathered a "scrap" game between two teams chosen, but this had no bearing on the league figures. The league game went down officially as a 1 to 0 forfeit.

This makes the standing as follows:

Club	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Central Area	15	13	2	.867
Terminal	18	11	7	.611
North Side	14	6	8	.429
West Side	15	1	14	.067

The league probably will continue until about September 28, although play may be called off earlier than this in order that there may be no interference with high school football activities. A number of games have been postponed, and there may be time to play these off before the end of the month. D. Carter has promised to check over the official schedule on this, and definite information as to the status of the schedule will be given out tomorrow.

Central Area has such a great lead in the race that Terminal probably will concede victory to the leaders at this stage of the race. However, North Side still has a chance to overtake Terminal for second place honors, which the Islanders slipped into some weeks ago. West Side, of course, is hopelessly out of the race.

H.R.H. Takes Back Seat When Wise Counsellor Wins By Hair

With the Prince of Wales looking on, Epinaud, pride of France, went down to defeat in his first race in America, when Wise Counsellor beat him out in a hair-raising finish at Belmont Park, Long Island, on Labor Day.

The crowd was too busy watching Wise Counsellor defeat Epinaud in a great race to pay any attention to His Royal Highness and Edward, Prince of Wales, was as much interested as anybody.

SENATORS GAIN ANOTHER GAME

Brooklyn Plays Red Sox Again Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Playing the greatest ball in the big leagues the Brooklyn Robins have become the sensation of the year in their dash for the national league pennant.

By taking their fourth double-header in four days the Robins moved up into second place last night within three points of the leading Giants. Brooklyn meets Boston today, while the Giants play a double-header with the Phils. Pittsburgh, in third, plays St. Louis.

The Robins have won 13 games in succession, the season's record. Dazzy Vance won his 12th straight victory and his 24th game of the season in the first game and Dutch Reuther won his first game since July 6 in the second game. Vance has won 24 games and lost only four.

The return to form of Reuther would be an immense help to the club and if he gets going in real form Brooklyn ought to win the pennant.

The Senators gained another game on the Yankees in the American League. The Yankees are going badly and they are handicapped by Ruth's injury.

Do you know Baseball?

QUESTIONS

1. What does the letters T. B. as used in box scores by certain papers mean?—W. V. R.
2. The rules state that a runner or runners shall be entitled to three bases if a fielder throws his glove and hits a batted ball and two bases if a thrower hits. What is the ruling if a fielder throws his glove at a batted or thrown ball and it fails to come into contact with the ball? In other words, must there be contact with the ball before the fielder can be punished for his act?—F. G.
3. There are runners on second and third and two out. The batsman hits safely to left field. Runners dash for the plate on the hit while batsman tries to make second base. He is retired at that base on a throw from left fielder, making final out of the inning. The plate umpire ruled runner from second and crossed the plate a step before batsman was retired at second. Does the run count?

ANSWERS

1. The letters T. B. as used in certain box scores refer to total bases. Thus if a batter made two hits, a triple and home run, his total bases would be seven.
2. When a fielder throws his glove at a batted or thrown ball, there must be actual contact with the ball or no penalty is inflicted.
3. The runs certainly count, provided they were over the plate before the batsman who tried to stretch a single into a double was retired at second base.

REJECTING BIBLE IS REJECTING ALL

Oliphant Stresses 'Safety First' For Soul

"The Unpardonable Sin" * or "Where the Lights Go Out on the Road to Hell" will be the subject of Evangelist W. L. Oliphant's sermon tonight at the revival at the DeQueen Park Church of Christ.

Last night's audience showed a considerable increase over the preceding night when the evangelist's sermon on "Safety First" was given.

Rev. Oliphant said: "Suppose I owe you ten dollars; I come to you to pay what I owe; I offer you a choice between two ten dollar bills. I say one of these I know to be genuine, the other one has been questioned. While I think it is all right, some have said it shows evidence of being counterfeit. Now which of the bills would you take? There isn't one of us but what would, without hesitation, accept the one that is unquestionable. When in religious matters, a controverted question is presented, the correct thing to do is to play 'safety first' and accept the position that is unquestioned. There is scarcely a religious question but one can decide in that way."

"The unbeliever refuses to accept Christianity; yet he offers us nothing constructive in its place. Now while I believe with all of my heart in God and the Bible—am forced to believe in them from the evidence at hand, whether I desire to or not—just suppose for argument's sake, that it should turn out that Christianity is a fake, and a Bible is untrue; have I lost anything by accepting the Bible and living the Christian life? Christianity will make me happier in this life. It will fit me for better service to humanity, and make a better citizen of me. So I have lost absolutely nothing by being a Christian, either way you view the matter. On the other hand if it should prove true—as it will—that the Bible is true, the man who has rejected it has lost everything, while the Christian has lost nothing."

"If 'Safety First' is a good slogan in the business world where a few dollars are at stake, why would it not be a good one where the soul's welfare is involved?"

THINGS HAPPEN WHEN WILEY VISITS ANAHUAC

"Wiley's always where there's something going on. He went over to Anahuac the other day, and the very day he got there with the other Baptists somebody tried to rob the Anahuac bank. And that's the first time in years anything ever happened at Anahuac."

This was what Mayor Logan was telling on Commissioner Wiley this morning.

"Yes, sir, you noticed something was going on all the time Wiley was here, and the day he left here everything got quiet and then broke loose at Anahuac."

Menus for Entire Family

Breakfast—Baked apples, rolled oats, top milk or cream, crisp whole wheat toast, poached eggs, coffee, milk or cocoa.

Luncheon—Cream of pea soup, garden bread and butter sandwiches, peach tapioca pudding with cream.

Dinner—Broiled porterhouse or sirloin steak, boiled potato, wax beans in cream, shredded cabbage, baked pears, plain cup cakes, milk and tea. Every child needs a substantial breakfast, but the foods must be easily digested. While cream is desirable for its butterfat and vitamins, many children fail to assimilate cream and thrive on rich milk with cereals rather than the heavier cream. Use little or no sugar over cereals. Long cooking brings out the natural sweetness of grain products.

The noon meal is perhaps the most difficult to plan. Salads and elaborate sandwiches that mean so much to grownups are not for youngsters. But a cream soup is liked by everybody and ideal for children. When school begins, the necessity for a nourishing but light luncheon increases. Growing brains and bodies need plenty of tissue-building material to grow on, but the food must be quickly assimilated.

The younger children should not eat meat for dinner. The clear plate "gravy" should be poured over whole wheat bread for their dinner protein.

Even if a child has all of his teeth, he seldom masticates his food sufficiently, so keep in mind the necessity of finely chopping vegetables.

Green, fresh vegetables are valuable food for children and as soon as they can be trusted to "chew" they should eat these foods.

Breakfast—Orange juice, oatmeal with raisins, top milk, codfish balls, milk toast, cocoa, coffee.

Luncheon—Scrambled egg on toast, bread and butter, spinach, plain cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Beef stew, cauliflower, orange salad, peach blancmange, whole wheat bread, butter, milk and coffee.

Of course the tea and coffee mentioned in these menus are a concession to the grown-ups. Every boy and girl who is brought up with the idea of food in mind finds tea and coffee have no place in the diet until "years of discretion" are reached will be less prone to "nerves" later in life.

Try serving the orange juice about half an hour before breakfast to the four-year-old member of the family. Run the raisins through the food chopper before adding them to the cereal.

The beef stew contains potatoes and carrots. Mine the meat for the youngest and always mash his vegetables well for him. No four-year-old child can be trusted to thoroughly masticate his food. Even with the mashing admonitions of "chew it up fine" do not let him miss.

Power

WHAT makes an automobile go? The combustion or burning of gasoline which produces power. What makes the human body go? The combustion of food by the digestive processes, which produces energy.

Of all known foods, sugar is one of the first in energy units, one of the cheapest in relative cost, one of the most quickly convertible into muscular power. From the soldier on a forced march to the arctic explorer who wants a condensed food ration, men who need strength and endurance use sugar freely as a food. This is one reason why

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
NO. 1—SILVER WINGS DOES AN ERRAND

"All right, your Royal Highness," said Silver Wings. "Dear, dear," said the Fairy Queen one day to Silver Wings, one of her messengers. "Here it is, late in August, and almost time for the Meadow-Grove School to begin. I do wonder if the dear little wood people and meadow people are ready."

"I don't know," said Silver Wings. "but as I was getting dew for you to take your bath this morning, I happened to hear Mrs. Longtail Jumping Mouse say to Mister Longtail Jumping Mouse that Jimmy Jumping Mouse hadn't a single pair of trousers that hadn't holes in them. And that Jimmie had outgrown all of her dresses three mouse inches, and that the pems ha been let down so many times they couldn't be let down another single bit."

"That's just what I thought!" nodded the kind Fairy Queen. "And I'm glad you told me, Silver Wings. Take these magic shoes to Nancy and Nick, the Twins, and tell them that I need their help very much, indeed. Tell them to take the shoes on and they will then see a little path in the woods that they never noticed before."

"They are to go to the end of the path and there they will see a tiny store with a sign on it which says, 'For Rent.'"

"Tell them to take the sign down and put up another sign over the door which says, 'Nancy, Nick & Company, School Clothes Given Special Attention.' After that I will send somebody to help them and they are to see that all the little wood people and meadow people have enough clothes to start to school with."

"Who will you send?" asked Silver Wings. "Of course it isn't at all the thing to ask a queen a question, but then Silver Wings knew the Fairy Queen, so very well she was almost like one of the family."

"Mister Snip-Snap," said the Fairy Queen. "He knows all about cutting a fitting. He's the best fairy tailor I've got. He'll be there waiting no doubt when the Twins get to the place. I'll telephone to him at once."

"All right, your Royal Highness," said Silver Wings. "I'll go and see the Twins at once and take them the magic shoes. I am sure they will be willing to help."

She tucked the magic shoes under her arm and then flew away to the meadow where the children loved to play.

There they were, right under the big shady chestnut tree, that was now full of green prickly burrs instead of yellow tassels. Jack Frost would blow his breath and turn them brown.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

THE STORY OF COLUMBUS
Part IV—Land in the Western Ocean
The crew of Columbus was made up of a little more than a hundred men. They came from many nations. One was an Englishman, another an Irishman. Most of them were from Spain and Portugal. There was a doctor on one ship, but no priest was taken along.

Admiral Columbus was aboard the best of the three vessels, the Santa Maria. The other ships were called the Pinta and Nina. They were in charge of two brothers named Pinzon.

The longest ship was only 65 feet from end to end. What small craft people of unknown race."

Cheered by these bits of talk, the adventurers left the islands Sept. 6, steering toward the west.

Day after day, they sailed, always looking for signs of land. And there were signs a-plenty. Birds, patches of seaweed, whales—all these were taken as signs by the fearful but hopeful sailors.

There is a story that some of the seamen at one time planned to throw Columbus overboard. There is no proof, however, that that story is true. All we can say for sure is that the sailors were sullen and hard to manage.

At last, on the evening of Oct. 11,

An artist who lived not long after Columbus, made this picture. It is supposed to show the bold admiral aboard the Santa Maria, sailing in the Sea of Darkness.

to use to venture on the Sea of Darkness!

Columbus ordered the fleet to sail for the Canaries, the "Isles of Fortune." Reaching those islands, they repaired the Pinta, which had a loose rudder, and got a new supply of wood and water.

While at the Canaries, the sailors heard all sorts of tales about "land to the west." "Twas said that "canes from strange lands" were often washed ashore, along with "the bodies of Columbus thought he saw lights in the distance, a sign of land. At 2 o'clock the next morning, by the moonlight, a sailor saw land itself. Imagining the joy of Columbus and the crew when they saw good solid earth ahead of them! The few hours it took to reach shore must have seemed like ages, but at last they got there. There were people on the land, but they ran away as they saw the strange ships approach.

C.-C. FIGHTS FOR LOW LINE RATE

One Cent Per Hundred Excess Paid, Says Taylor

Effort to secure a tariff rate on lime, now a cent and a half higher, as low as that now maintained for Beaumont and Orange is being made by H. Y. Taylor, traffic head of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping. In a suit before the Interstate Commerce commission in behalf of Port Arthur, Port Neches and Sabine, Beaumont and Orange have a rate of 10 cents. Taylor is maintaining a cent and half differential is unfair to Port Arthur and other Sabine cities which have not the lower rates.

"Port Arthur last year handled more than 700 carloads of lime. This meant the cent and a half rate higher charged here was absolutely a dead loss for Port Arthur and a large sum was lost as a result. We believe this port should not be discriminated against," Taylor said.

Taylor states shippers in the fight have offered a compromise to make the rate uniform for the Sabine district cities by changing it to 20 cents. Port Arthur would gain a half cent by such a procedure but Orange and Beaumont would have their rate raised exactly a cent. Naturally Beaumont and Orange, looking out for their own interests, are not agreeing to such a compromise, Taylor points out.

Briefs of Port Arthur's position in the case are being sent to Orange and Beaumont as fast as completed to keep them informed of the city's position, Taylor says. The matter has also been presented by the traffic manager to K. C. Ford, director of the Texas-Louisiana Traffic bureau, in an effort to adjudge the rate equitably.

High School Orchestra To Play for YMBL-ers

Extensive plans have been completed for the affair and the 200 new members and numbers of old ones reinstated are assured a roving welcome. Memorial, DeBisk says, Mayor Oscar Holcomb of Houston is expected to accept an invitation sent Wednesday to be guest of honor and principal speaker.

A box chicken luncheon will be served by the women of the First Methodist church, south.

FATHER LEAVES HER $5,000. DIDN'T KNOW HER NAME

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 5.—J. Levy left an estate of $15,000. His will gave his two daughters $5 each. In bequeathing $5 to one, Levy said he "understood she was married but did not know her name."

BEG YOUR PARDON

Thursday, in quoting Rev. T. Alvis Davis in connection with a meeting of the censor board, The News account unfortunately could be interpreted as making it appear that Rev. Davis had challenged the morality of the Port Arthur schools. The News knows this was not intended. Members of the censor board and others attending the meeting, to discuss application by a show troupe for a permit to show at an open air theater, know it was not intended. But nonetheless Rev. Davis' remark as it appears in the News story is susceptible of the misinterpretation, and this The News, in justice to Rev. Davis, the schools, and itself hastens to correct.

Rev. Davis' remark was intended to convey, in reply to that of another member of the board charging that at night after show hours, gambling and "other goings on" occurred at the show grounds, that it was just possible for such things to occur on the school grounds or on any other public grounds or place, late at night by parties choosing such grounds as a rendezvous, and that this was no argument for closing of the schools.

The News does not wish to place Rev. Davis in a false light. It does not wish to appear to place the schools in such a light, and hastens, in fairness to all concerned to clarify a statement susceptible of a wrong meaning.

Takes Iodine, Beaumont Woman is Unconscious

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 5.—Lola Henry, 35-year-old white woman living at the Peoples hotel here is in a serious condition at Hotel Dieu as the result of what police say was an attempt at suicide this morning when she drank a quantity of iodine.

A call for the police patrol to take a woman and man to the station was received this morning. The woman, who gave her name as Lola Henry, asked permission to change her clothes. She went in an adjoining room and shortly after officers heard her screaming. She was found writhing on the floor. It was said at Hotel Dieu that her recovery is improbable and had not regained consciousness at a late hour. Friends at the Peoples hotel stated that she had made a previous unsuccessful attempt by drinking bichloride of mercury, last week.

NORRIS TRIAL TO BE SEPTEMBER 15

58th Court to Hear Evidence in Thieriot Case

Special to The News. BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 5.—Whitney Norris, young Port Arthur boy charged with the killing of Garfield Thieriot less than two weeks ago will go to trial in the 58th district court on September 15 before Judge George C. O'Brien. Norris is alleged to have shot Thieriot following some family trouble and gave himself up to police shortly after the killing. A grand jury indictment was returned last week and he is now out on bond.

Both R. B. Brown and R. E. Word were granted continuance in the 60th district court recently because of absent witnesses. Judge O'Brien stated this morning that he hoped to eliminate unnecessary legal procedure and expense in bringing cases to trial before the principal witnesses had either moved away or could not be found.
